Peer Observation and Feedback:

Encourage teachers to observe each other's classes and provide constructive feedback. This fosters a collaborative environment and allows teachers to learn from each other's strengths and weaknesses. Peer observation can also be combined with scripting techniques to analyze teacher interactions and student engagement, says Education Advanced.

2. Professional Development Workshops:

Offer regular workshops focused on various aspects of teaching, such as new pedagogical approaches, technology integration, and classroom management strategies. These workshops can help teachers stay updated on best practices and develop new skills to enhance their teaching effectiveness.

3. Technology Integration:

Explore the use of technology to create a more engaging and interactive learning environment.

This could involve using educational apps, online learning platforms, interactive whiteboards, or even incorporating technology in assessments. Technology can also be used for individualized learning, assessment, and communication between teachers and students.
